A SPELLING LESSON.
A pretty deer is dear to me,
A hare with downy hair,
I love a hart with all my heart,
But barely bear a bear.
'Tis plain that no one takes a plane
To have a pair of pants;
A rake, though, often takes a rake
To tear away the weeds.
All rakes raise rakes, time raises all,
And, through the whole, whole wears.
A writ, in writing, "right" may write
He "right," and "right" be wrong.
For "write" and "rite" are neither "right,"
And don't to write belong.
Beer often brings a beer to man,
Conquering a coffin brings;
And too much ale will make us all,
As well as other folk decline.
That person lies, who says he lies
When he is not declining.
And when some folks decline
They all decline declining.
A quail never quails before a storm—
A lough will lay before a storm.
We cannot run the main at all—
No earthly power reigns over all.
The day dyes away, then dies;
To dye he's always dying.
Until upon his dying-day,
He thinks no more of dying.
A son of Mars may many a son;
All days must have their days;
And every knight should say each night
To him who weighs his ways.
'Tis need a man should weigh out meat
To feed his flocks, then dies;
The fair should fare on love alone,
Else one cannot love.
A line also is something false;
Of fables a line is made;
Her waist is not a waister's waist,
Though she may be a waister.
The springs of forth in Spring, and shoots
Shed from the trees in Spring;
Though Summer kills the flowers, it leaves
The leaves to fall in Fall.
I would a story here commence,
But you might find it stale,
So let's suppose that we have reached
The tail-end of our tale.

BREVITIES.
Country stiles are cut crossways.
Doctors are like verbs. They are regular, irregular and defective.
"Retrospective Prophecy," whatever that is, is what Prof. Huxley is working up now.
It has been discovered that burning the bung holes of a kerosene barrel with a red-hot poker will cause the barrel to disappear.
We suppose the man who was rocked in the cradle of the deep slept in the bed of the river when he grew up.—Burlington Hawkeye.
"Mr. Smith," said a lady at a fair, "won't you please buy this bouquet for me, to the lady you love?" "Wouldn't it be right," said Mr. Smith, "I'm a married man."

"Probably few persons," says the London Truth, "have had so many proposals of marriage as Lady Burdett-Goutts. I was talking a day or two ago with an eminent widower, 'I, myself,' he said, 'have proposed to her, for I regard this as a duty that every man owes to his family.'"
The fashion among young girls in London, says the Truth, is to walk and dance with elbows akimbo, while the lower part of the arms and hands wave about and propel the rest of the body; feet, owing to the high heels, are of little use. Formerly, no people had greater ease and grace in moving than English women.

"Doctor," said a lying fashionable belle, who had graduated at half a dozen boarding schools, to a friend of ours, who had just been introduced to her at evening party: "Doctor, which do you prefer, tholidity of intellect or brilliancy? Thum admire tholidity, but at the same time, as Shakti, prefer tholidity and brilliancy combined." The doctor sank in the nearest chair.
No true son of Ireland ever acknowledges that his country is deficient in anything but the potato crop. A recent arrival attended the Hibernia picnic at Reussel Park recently, and was asked by an enthusiastic acquaintance from Housack Falls if he ever attended an old-fashioned clam-bake. Pat hesitated a moment, then stammered him with impressive dignity and replied: "Well, no; never in this country."—Tray Times.

Todeson (a staunch Conservative ever since he took hands with royalty last week) "Look, aunt, there's Czeschski, the violinist, you know. By jove, if he isn't sitting between the Duchess of Ipewich and the Duchess of Patney! Splendid fellow, Czeschski! Most charming women, their Graces!—know them both well; must introduce you some day. (Bows elaborately, is completely ignored, and continues his remarks to his aunt.) Ugh! if it isn't sickening to see the way that fawning, fawning old ladies treat old friends, just because they're rich! Why, then, I'll tell you a foreigner, and speak to him dead next week; that's a comfort. Ugh! What a world!" (Becomes a Radical again on the spot).—Punch.

"Talk about cats," said Cardine, setting himself in the Times sanctum. "Why, they are felines who tell about bringing cats to life after they are killed, isn't a circumstance to the experience I once had. You see, my old cat had a litter of young ones. I took them from a little after leavin' of 'em, for for almost an hour, I took 'em and sold 'em to a sausage maker. About two days afterward the old cat was passin' the meat market, when she suddenly stopped after a string of link sausage. Quick as lightning she seized a lot of links, and ran like blazes to my barn. Next day as I was passin' a barrel in the barn, I heard a lot of mewin', and looked into the barrel, and what do you think I saw?" "Would not tell you," was our reply. "Well, in the bottom of that barrel lay that old cat, and I hope to run for Congress, if them four links of sausage wasn't takin' their reason just as natural as if they'd never been through a sausage chopper."—Whiskell Times.

When a man is thoroughly interested in something he is reading a very insignificant horse-fly can sometimes worry him a great deal. The other day one of the officials in a municipal office was reading. A fly alighted on his neck, crawled up the side of his nose and there stood fast, and fastened his talons in the tender cuticle. The olfactory organ was slightly elevated so as to break into wrinkles, while at the same time a mild brushing movement of the hand signaled the troublesome insect to move away. It just jumped out about a foot and settled back into its former position inside of a second. The first clutch with its claws brought the insect in the shape of a very energetic spring back and forth in front of the official countenance, but the fly hardly waited for the disturbance to subside when he was again snuggly bestowed on the nasal prominence. The persistence of the insect had worn out the patience of the man, and he broke out, "D—n the flies!" The fly may or may not have understood the exclamation, but a quiet stranger who had just dropped in did understand it, and he remarked in tones of the most irritating composure, "I'll tell you what's good for flies." "Well what's good for flies?" snapped out the official.
"Ducks,"
"Ducks?"
"Yes, ducks. Out of the Lindell car stables we keep ducks. The flies worry the horses mightily bad at this time of the year, but a car horse can rest easy at the Lindell stables."
"And how is that?" asked the official, becoming interested.
"Why they just have plenty of ducks, I tell you. Didn't you ever see a duck snap a fly? Whenever the flies get thick on a horse the ducks gather round and snap every fly that comes in reach. If a horse lies down the ducks just crawl all over him. The horses might soon find out who their friends are, and they like to have the ducks come. In fact, if the flies get bad the horses will lie down to give the ducks a chance. They are so industrious that they keep the flies pretty well thinned out. I tell you, there's nothing like ducks for flies."—St. Louis Republic.

LATEST FOREIGN NEWS.
CALCUTTA, Sept. 8.—The viceroy has received a telegram from General Roberts reporting that Ayob Khan's losses in the recent engagement were very severe.
General Hlayre with his reinforcements has arrived at Candahar.
LONDON, September 8.—Latest advices from the Cape of Good Hope state that the Cape Rifles have entered Baustland.
LONDON, September 8.—A terrible explosion occurred to-day at the Scabam colliery, by which 150 miners have killed or entombed in the mine.
LONDON, September 3.—Bulgaria and Roumelia have determined to combine their forces, and have entered into a league for mutual defense and the carrying out of internal reforms.
The young Queen of Holland yesterday gave birth to a daughter. There has been great rejoicings at Hague, and Amsterdam, as it was feared the line of Orange Nassau would become extinct on the death of the King and Prince of Orange.
Baron Haymerle, Austrian Chancellor, has arranged a meeting with Prince Bismarck at Friedrichshagen. It is generally believed that Austria-German understanding is fully maintained, and that the Conference relates to possible difficulties between France and Germany.
In the House of Commons Sir Charles Dilke, Foreign Under-Secretary, stated in reply to a question that the combined fleet which was now en route for Russia would be under the command of Vice Admiral Paget Seymour, and not under Admiral Hornby, as first expected. It was further stated that Admiral Seymour would act in combination with the foreign commanders of the contingent, with whom he would be in frequent consultation with regard to questions at issue between Turkey and her neighbors. Sir Charles Dilke said that these being entirely of a political nature strong hopes were entertained that coercion would not be required for their settlement.
Montenegro is not satisfied with the cessation of territory made by Turkey, and demands an indemnity of a million and a quarter francs (£50,000), on account of expenses to which it has been put by the refusal of the Porte to give effect to the decisions of the Berlin Conference.
The recent successes of Chili has been so important that the power proposes to incorporate the whole of Bolivia in her territory. The Bolivians are unwilling to lose their nationality, and though temporarily vanquished, would be very troublesome subjects.
Intelligence has been received from the seat of war, in South America, that it appears that hostilities between Chili and Peru have at present ceased. Communications have been exchanged between the respective Governments in view to the negotiations of terms of peace, and those overtures, it is understood, have been well received on both sides. England and France have also tendered their good offices for the purpose of mediating between the countries, and it is therefore considered highly probable that a satisfactory settlement will shortly be arrived at.
News lately received from China of the renewal of friendly relations between that country and Russia has been fully confirmed, and it is understood that a thorough entente cordiale now exists between the two Governments. Negotiations are proceeding at Peking for the conclusion of a treaty between the two countries, which will include the settlement of the Kulja and other questions.
We announced in last summary that His Excellency, Sir Hercules Robinson, who has been Governor of New Zealand since March, 1879, had received a despatch offering him the Governorship of the Cape, and that, in the circumstances, he felt he could not decline, and accepted. The departure of Sir Hercules was viewed with great regret.
MADRID, September 11.—Her Majesty Queen of Spain has given birth to a Prince.
